Association of American Publishers (AAP) is the national trade association of the U.S. book publishing industry. AAP's approximately 300 members include most of the major commercial book publishers in the United States, as well as smaller and non-profit publishers, university presses, and scholarly societies. AAP members publish hardcover and paperback books in every field and a range of educational materials for the elementary, secondary, post-secondary, and professional markets. Members also produce computer software and electronic products and services.

The Electronic Literature Organization (www.eliterature.org) is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization with a mission to promote and facilitate the writing, reading, and publishing of literature designed for the electronic media. Based in Chicago, the ELO is directed by a national board of leading experts in electronic literature, internet business, and electronic publishing, and is additionally advised by an international board of literary advisors and a board of internet industry advisors. The ELO maintains the Electronic Literature Directory and an Electronic Literature Web Resource Center, staffed by a network of leading e-lit writers operating independently in different parts of the USA. The ELO is supported by the donations of individual members, by corporations including ZDNet, and by foundations including the Ford Foundation.

EPC - the Electronic Publishers Coalition - was formed by some of the pioneers in the e-book publishing eager to connect with other publishers to share resources and information and to encourage acceptance of e-books by the public. Part of its mission has been to further e-book standards of quality and to honor excellence in e-book publishing, authoring and marketing. Find EPC on-line at www.epccentral.org.

Indraweb, Inc. is the innovative leader in the emerging new field of Surfable-Books. sBooks employ the cutting-edge technology of Orthogonal Corpus Indexing - OCI (SM) to transform any publication into an acutely accurate web directory without disclosing any proprietary content. SBooks present publishers with the opportunity to engage millions of internet users with an affordable subscription-based format for generating a substantially higher quality web search that complements the more traditional printed resources.
